

Farmers realising benefits of price-locking at sowing time with options trade: Officials

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA New Delhi, June 2

CONFIDENT OF DERIVATIVES trade picking up in agricultural commodities, officials on Tuesday said farmers have begun understanding benefits of the options trading by locking in their price at the cost of sowing of the crop in a big way.

A special options familiarisation programme for FPOs (farmer producer organisations) has also helped farmers learn the technique to take care of the price risk and concentrate their efforts on increasing the yield of their crops, an official said. "The success of the programme will most likely encourage them to participate in similar contracts in other agricultural commodities as well," he added.

The programme was launched by commodity bourse NCDEX in November 2020 wherein FPOs registered as clients with members of the NCDEX were eligible to buy a put option and lock-in a price in two commodities — chana and mustard seed — facilitating farmers/FPOs to manage the price risk.

The premium cost up to ₹300 per quintal to purchase put options was reimbursed by the NCDEX out of regulatory fee foregone by Sebi.

The farmer or FPO buying a put option is protected from the downward price risk while also retaining the upside benefit.
